A nighttime photograph of a city square in Liubljana, Slovenia. The scene is dominated by a stone bridge with a decorative railing, which spans across a canal. The bridge is illuminated with a vibrant green light, and its reflection is clearly visible in the water below. In the background, several buildings are brightly lit with warm yellow and white lights. The most prominent building is a large, classical-style structure with a red facade and white columns, likely the St. Nicholas Cathedral. To the right, another building is illuminated with a mix of yellow and blue lights. The overall atmosphere is a mix of historical architecture and modern lighting technology.
